

No Article Is Hopelessly Lost

Unless a Star Lost Ad Fails to Recover It

The proposition is simply this—Sometimes a lost article is not found. If it is found by an honest person a Star Lost Ad will get it for you. In more than nine cases out of ten the finder is an honest person. The Star is the only paper you can rely on to give you every available opportunity to recover a lost article.

The Reason Is Everybody Reads The Star

Letting Posterity Pay.

From the Youth's Companion.

There is a price of war that is more important, more dreadful, more unjust, and that takes far longer to pay than any other, and it is a price also that has to be paid in the only wealth, which is life. The mere question who wins the war has nothing to do with it. The questions who was right or wrong, who began it, who gained or lost territory, who paid tribute to whom when peace was declared, how the taxes rose or fell, which industries prospered or which decayed—all these questions are negligible when compared with the longest price of war, which all fighting nations have paid and must pay.

All the prices of war fall most heavily upon the future. In Great Britain we still pay heavy taxes every year for the war and other war expenses. The German youth, who are the past, right and wrong, glorious and inglorious. But the longest price of war is wholly paid by future generations, and buries the future into the people who will live in the years to come get none of the glory for which rulers wage war; they, at least, are innocent; they are at the mercy of the past, which did not consult them, but which makes them pay.

Starch.

From the London Chronicle.

Starch is scarce in the German laundries, and they have to economize on that. Happy Germans. I take them to my bosom if they will only follow the fashion (which we are starting) of abolishing the starched collar, shirt front, cuffs. What do we want with starch for our shirts when rice is more necessary for the front? Do you know anything about starch except as a mysterious article of food, and something to clean your shirts with?

Starch is good enough as food, when carefully disguised. But I think the Germans are wise in stopping the disguise in dress. The starched shirt front here and in Germany must go. I am sure that starch has many missions, but one of them is certainly not the design of making my dress habit a white sepulcher plastered with the food that should feed better men.

CHURCHMEN READY TO GREET WILSON

President to Be Guest at Reception Tonight by M. E. Church South.

REV. DR. E. V. REGESTER GIVES UP SECRETARYSHIP

Sessions of Conference Today at Mount Vernon Place Church Complete With Surprises.

Among the general hum of business of the 131st session of the Baltimore annual conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, being held this week at the Mount Vernon Place Church, time was found this morning to get ready for the reception to President Wilson tonight. The President is to be the guest of honor of the conference. He will hold an informal reception in the parlors of the church at 7 o'clock, and all delegates who hold the proper identification cards will be admitted to greet him. The President will not speak at the meeting, it is announced, which will be a regular night and Sunday school will be held.

Rev. Dr. John M. Moore, secretary of home missions of the church, will make the main address at the session. Today's session, devoted chiefly to the business of passing on the characters and ability of the 319 ministers of all grades included in the eight districts of the Baltimore conference, was replete with interest and even surprise. The chief surprise of the morning was furnished by Rev. Dr. E. V. Regester, secretary of the conference, who tendered his resignation from that office owing to the great strain which the work entailed upon him.

Dr. Regester's resignation, coming after his service of more than twenty years as assistant secretary and secretary of the conference, was a source of great regret to the members generally, who characterize Dr. Regester as "one of the best secretaries in Methodism."

Rev. Dr. Harry M. Carter of Harrisonburg, Va., was appointed to fill the secretary's chair, and immediately took up his duties. Dr. Carter was at one time pastor of the church at Alexandria and is a son of Rev. L. W. Carter, at one time pastor of the Mount Vernon Place Church.

Dr. Regester is the presiding elder of the Washington district, and for a number of years had been secretary of the Baltimore conference. He is a member of the book committee of the church.

All Lead Blameless Lives. In accordance with conference rule No. 22, which asks if all preachers are blameless in their life and official administration, the 309 ministers of all grades were passed upon this morning. "Nothing against him" was the practically universal verdict, varied now and then with recommendations by presiding elders for a superannuated relation for some aged minister.

Rev. B. E. Ball of Waynesboro, Va., one of the superannuated ministers, took the privilege on the floor when his name was called, and feelingly addressed the conference in what proved to be one of the most pleasant features of the session. Dr. Ball told how he rode his first circuit forty-nine years ago, and spoke of the days when he was a member of Col. Mosby's famous band of raiders.

At the conclusion of Dr. Ball's talk, Rev. Dr. Tyler started the singing of "Every Day and Every Hour." In which the audience, which crowded the auditorium, joined.

Dr. Prettyman was among the many pastors who gave reports. A splendid year at Occoquan was the report of Rev. H. L. Bivens of that place. The following were referred to the committee on conference relations for a superannuated relation: Rev. Charles S. Stanton of Elkton, Va.; Rev. J. K. Gilbert of Churchville, Va.; Rev. B. W. Bond of Leesburg, Va.; Rev. J. W. Wheeler of Newport, Va.; Rev. J. W. McNeil of Covington, La.; J. Cooper and Rev. F. E. Hammond.

Plea for Publication. A strong plea in the interests of the Methodist Review was made by Rev. Dr. Gross Alexander of Nashville, Tenn., editor of the magazine. Following his talk a large number of subscriptions to the Review were secured. Dr. Alexander is considered one of the most distinguished scholars of Methodism, and is an author of considerable note. He was for many years professor of theology at Vanderbilt University.

Dr. T. Wideman of the American Bible Society addressed the conference briefly on "the greatest book on the world."

Bishop Alpheus W. Wilson, who, together with Bishop Candler, the presiding officer, is one of the two bishops of the church attending the conference, occupied the chair this morning for a brief time. Bishop Wilson took the chair at 11:30 o'clock this morning, the time when he arrived upon the platform yesterday morning. Bishop Wilson was retired at the last general conference. He is eighty-three years old, but conducted the session this morning during the time he occupied the chair with the vigor of a man many years his junior. Members of the conference speak of Bishop Wilson as the "greatest preacher and theologian of the church."

Among the many prominent ministers at the session this morning were Rev. F. S. Parker of Nashville, general secretary of the Epworth League, and Rev. J. H. Moore of Lexington, Va., general secretary of the Bible church, and at one time pastor of the church at Alexandria. The committee on memorials had referred to it the names of the following ministers who have died since the last conference: Rev. J. H. Du Lancy and P. W. Jeffries. Histories of the lives of these ministers will be read at memorial services, which probably will be held Monday.

Land Epworth League. The Epworth League has accomplished more in promoting Christianity among the youth of the United States and in foreign mission fields than any other similar organization, according to speakers at last night's meeting of the conference.

Statistics covering the first quarter century of work done by the league were read by Rev. J. H. Moore, general secretary of the league, and by Rev. John Paul Tyler of Clifton Forge, Va. Such a conference, it was declared, would bring together representatives of 163 senior and seventy-three junior leagues in Maryland, Virginia, West Virginia and the District of Columbia with a total membership of nearly ten thousand. Rev. J. J. Reeves of Baltimore spoke upon the subject.

German in Northern France. From the Metropolitan. Don't imagine that German soldiers are a cruel, arrogant race. They have done many admirable things. I am sure that some of those little northern French towns never were so clean, so French, so hospitable, everywhere they have reopened schools and churches; they have re-established local institutions and local charities; they have scoured whole towns, lighted every house with electricity—placed up-to-date hospitals, served by the finest doctors in the world, at the free disposal of the humblest citizen. The French make, civil courts, police—the officers of local government—retain their positions and seem to function as usual. But it is a cruel mockery. This is a conquered people; there is not the least doubt of that. As we rode about the country, we saw and heard everywhere a face that watched our passing automobiles; and those who came late caught the current that went hurrying after us. "Cochons! Boches!" Sometimes the women shook their fists and spat at us. The men were more cautious; for they were terrible penalties for "whoever shows contempt or disrespect for officers and soldiers of the German army."

WOMEN TAKE A HAND IN JAPANESE ELECTION

Independents Likely to Increase Strength in House, Holding Balance of Power.

TOKIO, March 25.—Closing an exciting campaign, during which the wives of several candidates at Tokyo made personal visits and appeals to the voters, a general election was held today throughout the Japanese empire to choose a new house of representatives.

The last house was dissolved by the emperor Christmas day, 1914, because of its refusal to ratify the military program of the cabinet. Today's election, therefore, not only brings in a new house, but decides the fate of the cabinet headed by Count Shigenobu of Okuma.

In the last diet the ministry was opposed by a majority, and should this majority, represented by the seiyukai, conservative party be returned the cabinet might have to retire from office.

700 Candidates for Offices. According to latest forecasts, however, the independents are likely to be increased from twelve to forty, and thus hold the balance in the house. The government insisted upon an increase in the army of two divisions, and Baron Kato, the foreign minister, declared that the adoption of this measure would not affect Japan's relations with the other powers. The seiyukai (conservative) contended that the success of the government in pushing this measure through would be a blow to constitutionalism.

The number of representatives elected today was 381, but in view of the difficulty of determining the balloting the result will not be known for several days. In all there were about 700 candidates.

FRAMES PAYMENT PLAN. Controller Downey Drafts Scheme in Settling War Claims.

In view of the terms of the "Connibus" war claims bill, passed March 4, providing that no more than 20 per cent shall be paid to any attorney or agent of claimant for damages accruing from seizure of personal property by federal authority during the civil war, this is the procedure proposed by the controller of the Treasury, George E. Downey, enable the Secretary of the Treasury to comply with the terms of the law.

When fame does come to the average man it roasts on his tombstone.
